CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSION & SUGGESTION

4.1. Conclusion

From the research conducted by the writer about people’s struggle, the writer can draw the conclusion that struggle has two types or forms. The first is a physical struggle or often known as a struggle that uses strength. Then the second is the physical struggle or what is known as the struggle that does not use physical strength, but with someone's psychological strength or negotiation. A person's goal to fight is that he wants to achieve something he wants, or to change things.

The writer also discusses the phases that doing by someone who is struggling. The first phase is the demand for love. In this phase, someone who struggle will determine the motivation of the struggle. The next phase is the demand for self-esteem, which means that someone will not be easily dropped by another person because he feels himself just like everyone else. The last phase is demand for recognition, which is when people who struggle have succeeded and want recognition for their success.

The writer has also determined a number of positive messages contained in the movie, namely the brave carried out by the main actors in the fight against injustice and cruelty over the government of the kingdom. Then, faithful is very necessary to be easily committed in life. The last is kindness because kindness is needed so that we can be more valued by others.
4.2. Suggestions

Aquaman movie is interesting to watch because the main character is strong and unbeatable. Good looking visual appearance of the characters is also one of its advantages. This movie is not worth watching for children without parental supervision because of the many fighting scenes and romance scenes.

For further researchers who want to examine the literature, you should first review the theories that already exist. It is best to examine the literature with the theme of science fiction or psychology because of its more diverse discussion.

For students who will face the final assignment, you should come to the campus library and see examples of the outlines provided so that it is easy to determine the chosen outline according to the ability of the writer.
