

ABSTRACT

Ichsan Affandy (12130307), “Information system product sales web-based rattan”.

Use of the internet today has become a necessity. Because almost every aspect of life can get the information. Especially in the field of business. Companies race -the race to make the information system for the purposes of marketing product and can be widely known unobstructed distance and time, as well as being a means for communication with the client so that the communication of them to be faster. Income that is not necessarily a lack of promotion and makes the stationary Deymine Collection still can not be known in the community. In addition to the development and expansion of sales and increased sales not only in the store. To overcome such problem, the writer intends to try to handle the sales process by designing an information system or web-based sales of goods that are often known as E-Commerce PHP and MySQL.

Keywords : Information system, Sales Product rattan